Dear Mr. Van Schaik:

Congratulations, you have been accepted into the Master of Science in Finance and Risk Management program at the Business School at the University of Colorado Denver, Graduate Programs for the Summer 2013 semester. Admission to our programs is competitive and requires high potential for success in graduate school as measured by your academic background, admissions test scores and professional experience. Your acceptance indicates that we believe you have such potential.

The Business School offers a high quality program that is accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB International). AACSB International has the most rigorous standards and is the most prestigious accrediting association of business schools in the United States. The University of Colorado Denver is one of only two AACSB International accredited programs located in Denver. We believe that the quality assured by the combination of AACSB International and our balanced approach to excellence in both teaching and research will provide you with an outstanding educational experience.
